A multitude of other forging techniques will be covered including forge welding, the illusive square corner and tons of helpful tips on making your blacksmithing business viable.

BIO FROM DOROTHY:

In 1973 I prayed for a way that I could show that God exists and helps in our lives. I plugged into iron and never looked back; it is what I was intended to do. I feel privileged to have been in on the ground floor of the revival of the art of smithing in America.

My husband (now deceased) took a course in horseshoeing at the farrier school in our area of Washington State. I took the next course and as I was getting ready to start, the old instructor left and a new hot shot took over. The entire thing went past coincidence very quickly as doors opened and opportunity after opportunity presented. The instructor (Barry Rice) saw the potential that I had for the ironwork over the horseshoeing as he had been to Frank Turley's. He pointed me in that direction. I went to Turley's who pointed me to ABANA which was less than two years old at the time and consisted of Francis Whittaker and Tom Bredlow. The rest is history. Many years have gone by, each with it's own set of challenges and learning experiences. From Turley's I was asked to teach blacksmithing (imagine that!!!) at the college where I learned to shoe horses. I learned along with my students and this is probably why I love teaching today...I taught there for 20 years in the continuing Ed department. I received an Honorary Teaching certificate from that institution to teach Adult Education classes. I have been invited to teach workshops and demonstrations all over the US and abroad. They invite me to spend time in their shops, share their secrets with me while I share mine with them, pat me on the back and pay me with real money before sending me home. I have learned along with all of them...we have gone to school together...one step at a time, one technique at a time. I have been fortunate to watch and learn from many greats..Turley, Whitaker, Paley, Gunter, Ross, the list goes on and on.. I have received wonderful awards along the way, many gold in color. The Bealer Award was a highlight of my life and having my daughter there to present it was priceless. The Laureate Award from the 1998 ABANA Conference is precious to me. Two Gold Trouser Button from AACHEN Teaching and Design presented by the late Manfred Bredohl are among my favorite. Who could orchestrate such a career? Certainly not I. If I had know where I wanted to go and what I wanted to achieve, I would likely have screwed it up from the start. I have let God be the business manager because He knows everyone and I have tried to let it work out by itself. I had no idea all of "this" was out there. I have had a wonderful, interesting life because of it. I just give credit where it is due and give everything into the industry that I am asked. That's one of the reasons I love ABANA so much, it's my chance to give back on a daily basis. The success that I find in this career is counted in the integrity that I place into every project that I do and into every aspect of my life. Touching the life of another along the way is the real measure of success to me. With smithing, I have been able to live a life of integrity, touch the lives of others and show that God loves every one of us and helps us all. I love my life, sure it is hard and there have been many difficult hurdles along the way...there still are. However, I have the assurance, based upon the philosophy that started everything, it will all work out in the end. I need ask for nothing more. I step up to the anvil and hammer iron and bronze. If I am at all fortunate, I will die with my hammer in hand.
